

Rachelle Foss Bio April 2012

Rachelle Foss is currently a Grant MacEwan University student pursuing a BA in Professional Writing and Communications.

She had the pleasure of working as a writer and the assistant editor for The Western Sentinel on a six month term, during which time she had the opportunity to write about and take part in important projects such as Afghanistan: A Soldier's Story, and the Veteran's Hockey Challenge.

Currently she is writing and editing on a freelance basis. She is an active member of the editorial board for the Earth Common Research Journal, and published a paper in the same Journal in previous years.

In her free time, Rachelle enjoys writing fiction, gardening and outdoor activities with her two young children.